During the exam, in turn, the members of the public council come to the exams and supervise the live exams. Organization of education, management, colloquiums and exams at the University is organized by the Public Council, which consists of well-known representatives of science and education of the country and the region. Members of that Public Council periodically visit the University. There, they observe the process of organization of education, colloquium (a form of testing and assessing students' knowledge in the education system before exams) and exams and give their suggestions. The composition of the Public Council also includes representatives of students, which serves to protect the rights of students. This is a strong fight against bribery. Exams and colloquiums are conducted in full transparency.

Students' knowledge is assessed on a 100-point system, and all academic activities are reflected in their personal accounts. Of the total grade, 50 points are earned during the semester (20 points for class participation and 30 points for colloquiums), and 50 points are obtained during the exam.

Colloquiums are usually held twice for each subject. Exams consist of 5 questions, each evaluated at a maximum of 10 points. Students can electronically choose and change the timing of their exams and colloquiums.

To ensure objectivity, written exam papers are coded and checked by several instructors. Transparency is also maintained through anonymous student surveys.

An Appeals Commission operates to review complaints, and students have the right to request re-evaluation of their results. Additionally, special complaint boxes and direct communication channels with the Rector are available.
